

Lightning Bugs

Let's have a talk about the future
Full of wisdom, hope and pride
To see what's happiness, find worthwhile deeds
To build a better place for you and me
Say home, home,
I am home, home
And we could spend the night watching lightning bugs and willow trees

We could breathe it in and breathe it out
While the world turns around and is full of doubt
Say home, home,
I am home, home

Do you see the soggy lightning in my eyes
That's when I look at you before I say Good Bye

Cause my home is where your heart is far beyond of what is real
It's more than just to lay down in your arms
It's a warm breeze in the winter
A fire work in the rain
The step you take when you say I am home

If we could pause for a moment
I would share it with you
Make it last forever and let it decay
And if you ask for direction there is one thing to Say home, home,
I am home, home

There are one million reasons to let love fade away
But there is no one in town that loves you in this way

Cause my home is where your heart is far beyond of what is real
It's more than just to lay down in your arms
It's a warm breeze in the winter
A fire work in the rain
The step you take when you say I am
Home
