Lyrics: Anna-Lena Michel

Safe and Sound

I'm buried now, I walk alone again
No solid ground to handle all my burdens
All I wanted was to feel something
To be just safe and sound in your arms
But you just, you struck me down to my knees again
The hidden sun to resurrect my heart
And where's the hope to breathe me
Searching for

Love that is not meant to be only
For the broken ones that've lost their minds to find
Love that is not meant to be Broken for all time

I'm lost in time, I sense the lonely heart
A horrid crime to let me settle down
In the darkest valley where I can't feel
Just safe and sound in your arms
But you just, you pulled me down to let me starve again
A spoken lie to suffocate the silence

Where's the hope to breathe me

Searching for

Chorus

It's our hope to breathe again

That takes us high above

It's the chance to feel again

That brings us back to life

Chorus
